Performance support that works the way your employees do

With so much for your workforce to know to be successful on-the-job, it's easy for them to forget the information they only use occasionally. Yet most organizations today haven't found an effective way to seamlessly connect their workforce to on-the-job resources and support they need, in the exact moment of need—and the cost associated with not being able to find the right information at work is huge. In fact, the average person wastes 20% of their work-time searching for information.

Let's face it, traditional on-the-job support tools simply don't work for the frontlines of your organization.

Intelligent search

Axonify Discover is powered by an intelligent search that scans every resource—even video—to serve up the right information the very first time, in seconds. Employees can refine their search by looking in specific Communities or using Tags to narrow their results faster. And Axonify Discover is powerful enough to integrate with your existing intranets and content management systems, revitalizing forgotten information silos and connecting your people to what's in them through a single, easy-to-use, modern interface.

Social and collaborative content

The reality is 80% of workplace knowledge sits tucked away in your employees' heads. Axonify Discover gives you the tools to help you share this knowledge across the organization and make your entire workforce smarter in the process.

- Employees can ask and answer questions, post helpful articles and rate content.
- Resources can be added in virtually any format, including video, images, audio, PDF and text, so there's no limit to what kind of knowledge your employees can share.
- Built-in approvals allow experts to screen content before everyone can see it.
- A helpful newsfeed ensures employees can easily catch up on any important updates they might have missed.

Resource management

Adding or managing new job aids and resources is easy with a built-in editor, approval workflows, versioning and more. Employees can flag content that is outdated, notifying administrators to take a second look and ensuring information stays relevant to employees. And the ability to create communities that reflect the unique resource needs of different teams or departments, along with a host of other tools, make end-to-end administration simple.

The power of insight

Smart analytics let you look inside popular searches, including which keywords employees entered that didn't return any results, so you can build resources to fill the important gaps. You'll also get visibility into other usage metrics by department or right down to an individual.
